[1] Blank in original.

[2] Altered from "Gurdayne."

[3] Possibly "Philips." The entry reads: "Thomas Cooper, eodem die Anthonye, the 6 day William Philips."

[4] One of the yeomen of the queen's privy chamber; his will pr., 21 October 1579, by John Worley, his son and sole exor.

[5] "Kynge" written over an erasure.

[6] The Gatehouse, Westminster, once the principal approach to the monastery, stood at the western entrance of Tothill Street, and consisted of two chambers over two arches, built, according to Stow, in the time of Edward III., by Walter de Warfield the cellarer. After the Reformation the eastern chamber became the Bishop of London's prison for convicted clergy, and the western, the common gaol of Westminster, within the walls of which Raleigh and many other distinguished prisoners were confined.

[7] His will, as of "Lambeth, co. Surrey, manors of Kynwick, co. Norfolk, and Howchins, co. Essex, Cheshunt and Much Hadham, co. Hertford, Blewbery Parsonage, Berks, Urswick School, co. Lancaster, Pembroke, Clare, and Jesus Colleges, Cambridge, Brantingthrop, co. Leicester, Castle Camps, co. Cambridge, and the manor of Scrowby, co. Nottingham," pr., 20 January 1582, by Christopher Marshall, his nephew, son of his brother, Thomas Marshall, with power reserved for a similar grant to the other executors, John and Thomas Marshall, sons of the aforesaid Thomas.

[8] This entry evidently inserted later. It appears in the original between 13 and 14 November.

[1] His will, in which he desires to be buried "within that chapel of St. Margaret's church where I used to sit, as neare unto my state and condition as conveniently as may be," pr., 19 December 1586, by Catherine, his widow (see her B 29 December 1591, and note thereto).

[2] D. 11 December 1586, aged 46; by his will, pr. 24 December 1586, in which he describes himself as of the parish of St. Margaret, gardener, he gave to the poor people of the parish a lease of certain tenements in Tothill Street and the Sanctuary, the produce of which was to be distributed upon the feast of St. Thomas the Apostle to forty poor ancient householders.

[3] Blank in original.

[4] So called as being the regular passage through which the thieves were led to the Gatehouse prison, so that they might not escape into the Sanctuary and thus defeat the ends of justice. It was a turning on the west side of King Street near its southern end.

[5] Nothing appears to be known of this bishop of Kerry, but the records of episcopal appointments in Ireland about the time of his death are very imperfect. James Fitzmaurice (or FitzRichard) Pierce, who was inducted by the Pope to the see of Ardfert, formerly called the bishopric of Kerry, obtained a grant of faculties (quoted by Brady) in 1575, and according to a somewhat doubtful list given in Dudley Loftus' Annals, he attended a parliament in 1585; but he was attainted, and is described as "late Bishop of Ardart" in 1588. Nicholas O'Kenny got a queen's letter for the see 26 June 1588, but the document does not give the name of his predecessor.

[1] His will, as of Westminster, gentleman, pr., 17 February 1590, by Henry Maynarde and William Boyer, his sons-in-law.

[2] Dau. of Henry Parry, of Newcourt, co. Hereford, and, according to the inscription on her monument in St. Margaret's church, chief gentlewoman of Queen Elizabeth's privy chamber, and keeper of her majesty's jewels; d. 12 February, aged 82, and her will pr. 5 March 1590.

[3] Altered from "Sy . . . . ."

[4] His will, in which he describes himself as one of the yeomen ushers of her majesty's chamber, pr. 22 April 1590.

[5] Of the city of Westminster, armiger; admon. of his goods granted, 4 June 1590, to Margaret, his widow.

[6] Altered from "Yuell."

[7] The beginning of the present life of this ancient foundation, now known as Westminster School, is ascribed to the year 1560 and the pious bounty of Queen Elizabeth.

[8] Altered from "Joh . . . . ."

[4] By the Act of 1540 (32 Hen. 8, c. 12) all special or chartered sanctuaries were abolished, and in their stead Westminster and seven other towns, with certain defined limits, were declared to be sanctuaries, to which privileged places abjuring fugitives were to be directed. The sanctuary of Westminster was by St. Margaret's churchyard, between the old Gatehouse on the south-west and King Street on the north-east.

[1] By his will, as of the city of Westminster, gentleman, pr. 8 December 1603, he left all his goods and chattels to be converted into money, as well as all his real estate to be let at the highest possible rental, the proceeds to be lent to honest young men, being occupiers or traders within the city of Westminster, in sums not exceeding £50 for one or two years, at the rate of five per cent., which apparently was half the usual rate of interest for loans at this period.

[2] Entered also under 28 February and there erased.

[3] Said to have been b. at Shrewsbury about 1620; entered the service of Henry Howard, Earl of Surrey, the poet, with whom he remained about four years; became a soldier of fortune, serving in Scotland, Ireland, France, and the Low Countries; intermittently a hanger-on at the court; spent some time at Oxford, where he was patronised by Robert (Dudley) Earl of Leicester, then chancellor of the university; pensioned by Queen Elizabeth, 1592; according to Weever, his tomb was near that of John into France, 1569, where he remained five years; accompanied his half-brother, Sir Humphrey Gilbert, on an unsuccessful colonising expedition to North America, 1578–9; went to Ireland, 1580, where he met with much success in crushing the rebellions of the south; returning to England, 1581, speedily became a favourite of Elizabeth and the recipient of numerous royal favours; made a second voyage to North America, which resulted in many discoveries, besides founding a colony in that portion of the country named by him Virginia, in honour of the queen, 1584; lord warden of the stannaries, 1584; M.P. for Devon, 1584–5, 1586–7, for St. Michael, 1593, for Dorset, 1597–8, and for Cornwall, 1601; knighted at Greenwich, 6 January 1585; took a prominent part in the defeat of the Armada, 1588; incurred the queen's displeasure on account of his attachment to Elizabeth Throckmorton (dau. of the well-known Sir Nicholas Throckmorton, by Anne, dau. of Sir Nicholas Carew, K.G.), one of the maids of honour; imprisoned for a time, 1592, but m. the lady of his choice; joint commander with Essex and Effingham in the celebrated expedition against Cadiz, 1596, the success of which was mainly due to his arrangements; captain of the yeomen of the guard, 1597; governor of Jersey, 1601–2; fell into disfavour when James ascended the throne, and imprisoned in the Tower on a trumped-up charge of treason, 1603–15, during which time he wrote his famous History of the World; having promised to obtain great treasure from South America, released from prison, 1615, but the voyage proving a failure, he was on his return put to death on the original charge of treason; his execution took place in the old palace yard, 29 October 1618, and he was buried in the chancel of St. Margaret's church.

[1] His will, as of Westminster, citizen and pewterer of London, pr., 14 January 1621, by Sarah, his widow and sole exor.

[2] Blank in original.

[3] "A tall and proper person," according to Fuller, "and lived in this city [Westminster]. Nor had this large case a little jewel, this long body a lazy soul, whose activity and valour was adequate to his strength and greatness, whereof he gave this eminent testimony. When Sir Thomas Knevet was sent, November 4, 1605, by King James, to search the Cellar beneath the Parliament-house, with very few for the more privacy, to attend him, he took Master Doubleday with him. Here they found Guy Faux, with his dark-lant-horn, in the dead of the night, providing for the death of many the next morning. . . . Faux beginning to bussel, Master Doubleday instantly ordered him at his pleasure, up with his heels, and there with the Traytor lay the Treason flat along the floor, by God's goodness detected, defeated." His will pr., 3 January 1621, by William Mann, armiger, his sole exor.

[4] His will, as of the parish of St. Margaret, Westminster, pr. 17 January 1621.

[5] Dau. of Christopher Smyth, of Annabells, and widow of Sir John Fortescue, of Salden, co. Buckingham, knt. (chancellor of the exchequer, 1589, and chancellor of the duchy of Lancaster, 1601), by whom she had an only dau., Margery, who m. Sir John Poultney, of Misterton, co. Leicester, knt.; her will pr. 22 February 1621.

[6] Altered from "Coseland."

[7] S. and h. of Sir Thomas Gerard, of Bryn, co. Lancaster, knt., by Elizabeth, el. dau. and co-h. of Sir John Port, of Etwall, co. Derby, knt.; b. 1560; matric. [1] Dau. and h. of Sir Richard Trevor, of Trevallyn, knt.; m. 2ndly, Arthur Bagnall, el. s. of Sir Henry Bagnall, of Stoke, co. Stafford, knt.; admon. of her goods, as those of Dame Magdalen Terringham alias Bagnall, late of the parish of "Llanmiddinvin," co. Anglesey, granted, 16 November 1656, to Nicholas Bagnall, esq., her son.

[2] See his C 20 December 1618, and note thereto.

[3] El. s. of Henry Elsynge, of Battersea, co. Surrey, barrister-at-law, and clerk to the House of Lords; b. 1606; educated at Westminster School and at Oxford, matric. (Christ Church), 1624, B.A., 1625; a student of the Middle Temple, 1628; clerk of the House of Commons, 1640–8; eminent for his parliamentary knowledge, and author of The Ancient Method and Manner of holding Parliaments; resigned his clerkship, being unwilling to take any part in the proceedings against the king; erroneously stated by Wood to have died in 1654, and to have been bur. at Hounslow; see his wife's B 7 May 1650.

[4] Written in large characters; his nuncupative will, as of Thomas Weaver the younger, of the parish of St. Margaret, Westminster, pr., 16 January 1657, by Thomas Weaver, his father, as curator of Sarah Weaver, a minor, the testator's sister and principal legatee.

C = Christening Section. M = Marriage Section. B = Burial Section.

The figures (except those within square brackets) refer to the text and denote the year in which the entry appears, the century being omitted when once it has occurred.

The figures within square brackets refer to a footnote, denoting the page and the number.

Wherever practicable variants of the surnames are grouped together under the most modern form.
